Beloved Laneway festival back at the Showgrounds

St Jerome's Laneway Festival is bringing an all-star line-up of international and Australian acts to the Brisbane Showgrounds this Saturday, for its first festival in three years.

A diverse range of almost 30 artists will take to the four stages, including headliners American sibling indie-rock band Haim, plus Japanese singer Joji and indie-pop sensation Phoebe Bridgers.

More than 15,000 people are expected to pack the Showgrounds for Laneway's first festival on its five-city Australian circuit.

The forward-thinking music festival, known for securing big name artists just as they break into stardom, last took place in early 2020 before the covid-19 pandemic.

Brisbane Showgrounds General Manager of Venue Sales and Marketing Jago Coyle said it was fantastic to welcome Laneway back for its thirteenth festival at the Showgrounds.

"We've been hosting the Brisbane leg of Laneway since 2008 and we're proud of our long-standing relationship with the popular festival," he said.

"Laneway always brings memorable moments to visitors of our venue, including megastar Lorde performing in 2014 and Grammy award-winner Flume entertaining the crowds in 2016."

Laneway is a 16+ event, with gates opening at 11.30am.

The Brisbane Showgrounds precinct is located 1.5km from Brisbane's CBD and is Queensland's largest indoor/outdoor events site. Visit www.brisbaneshowgrounds.com.au.
