Information security conference cracks the code at the Brisbane Showgrounds

Delve into the world of cyber security at CrikeyCon IX when it takes up residence at the Brisbane Showgrounds this Saturday.

CrikeyCon IX is a community-led conference on information security, featuring workshops, presentations and demonstrations for everyone from beginners to enthusiasts.

CrikeyCon guest speakers range from industry professionals to security wizards who will present on topics including testing security through cybercriminal roleplaying, unveiling digital forensic treasures in Electron Apps and real-world examples of Living off the Land techniques.

About 1,000 conference delegates are expected at the event where they can put their skills to the test with a series of workshop challenges including Capture the Flag and more.

CrikeyCon will be held at the Royal International Convention Centre and will offer attendees a place to connect with industry professionals, recruiters and fellow enthusiasts while they learn about the latest in information security.

Brisbane Showgrounds General Manager of Venue Sales and Marketing Jago Coyle said he was excited to welcome back CrikeyCon to the Royal ICC for the second year.

"Information security is something that has become extremely relevant in this digital world and CrikeyCon will be a hub for the latest and greatest in information security," Mr Coyle said.

The event runs from 8am to 6pm this Saturday and is designed for those over 18 with minors requiring supervision. To purchase tickets, visit <https://crikeycon.com/>

The Brisbane Showgrounds precinct is located 1.5km from Brisbane's CBD and is Queensland's largest indoor/outdoor events site. Visit www.brisbaneshowgrounds.com.au.
